CABI Codes

Created by experts at CABI, CABI Codes are unique classification codes for indexing records within CAB Abstracts, CAB Abstracts with Full Text, and Global Health. These codes are alphanumeric, hierarchical categorizations that divide the database into broad subject areas that would be difficult to describe in key words alone. CABI Codes can be searched just like any other field tag within the database.

Broaden your search

Searching across one or multiple CABI Codes can act as a stepping stone for research by helping end users explore the content within a subject area and familiarize themselves with an area of study they may not know much about. From there, students and researchers can decide which path they want to take with their research.
